

No. 1 · FEB. 15 2019

When? Friday, February 22nd 2019.

Where? Cúcuta, Colombia.

Massive concert in Cúcuta, Colombia, called by Richard Branson in support of the entry of humanitarian aid to Venezuela, confirmed.

An international, solidary and spontaneous event that will flood the Colombian-Venezuelan border with the goal of facing the humanitarian emergency that Venezuela is going through.

Richard Branson, entrepreneur, philanthropist and founder of the Virgin brand, will organize a colossal concert that will take place next Friday, February 22nd -in the Colombian city of Cúcuta- that seeks to raise $100 million dollars, destined in its totality as a humanitarian aid for the Venezuelan people.

With: Let the Stars Shine for All, as its slogan, this massive concert will count with the participation of a list of major musicians of the Latin and English industry. As hours go by, more international artists are joining in.

Donations can be done through: www.venezuelaaidlive.com, where we'll also be updating all the information about the event.

The concert will be free and will take place outdoors over the San Martín bridge, a landmark of the city of Cúcuta.

You can join our official social media:

Facebook, Twitter, Instagram: Venezuela Aid Live

#AidVenezuela

#AyudaVenezuela

www.virgin.com

For more information:

National Press:

Carolina Rojas +573112022900

prensa@venezuelaaidlive.com

International Press:

Eugenia Ocampo G.

press@venezuelaaidlive.com